And the old gun quivered in full flight.
The gunners, the gunners, the gunners,

March 30.—The news of Mrs. Christianity's statement about her husband has evidently spread very rapidly to Peru, as the minister is already beginning to intransigent deportations with statements concerning his wife, and how she came to leave Peru without him.

He says that when his wife came on to him in Peru, she was under the protection of Mr. George Haight, an American resident in Peru. Haight is a man of family. He took a fancy to Mrs. Christianity and paid her a great deal of attention. The minister avers that Haight came very often to the legation, and that he was altogether too devoted to his wife. He acknowledges that he did have a son with his wife, but it was occupied by his coming into his air rooms one afternoon suddenly and finding his wife in Haight's arms.

Another scene that he had with his wife was upon the discovery of a letter written to her by Dr. Victor Christianity, now in Leavenworth, Kansas, in which the doctor expressed himself more ardently than a stepson should.

Mrs. Christianity, in reply to this, says it is true that Dr. Christianity charged her with being in Mr. Haight's arms, but that it was from his extreme jealousy. Mr. Haight was sitting talking with a friend in the legation parlor. They were at a round table. Mrs. Christianity reached across the arm for a book, excusing herself as she did so, but as this juncture the minister came in, and as she charges, the minister's hand down, soon took place.

The Dr. Victor letter she admits; but as it also contains a reference to the Chandler banking and the money paid to Christianity, she does not think that letter will be brought forward very prominently in the case.

The Dr. Victor professed a great admiration for her, but she has never encouraged him.

She avers that she has been the closest friend of Mr. Haight's since he came to Peru.

Fourth district.—John H. Martin, of Thompson, and Marshall J. Hatchet, of Marion.

Fifth district.—W. T. Trammell, of Thompson.

Sixth district.—J. M. Pace, of Newton.

Seventh district.—W. B. Johnson, of Whitfield.

Eighth district.—Miles W. Lewis, of Gwinnett.

The chairman addressed the committee upon the importance of the work. He indicated that the immediate duty of the committee was the calling of a convention for the appointment of delegates to the national democratic convention; the nomination of presidential electors for the state. The committee had also called a convention to settle the question as to government and state offices.

On motion of J. M. Pace, Hon. George T. Thompson, then of the House of Representatives, was invited to sit with the committee and to favor it with any views on state or national questions.

Mr. Pace was delegated to convey the resolution of the committee to Mr. Bell.

On motion of W. B. Johnson, the resolutions offered by him and previously laid on the table were taken up and read again.

Mr. Johnson moved the adoption of the resolutions, and they were adopted without opposition.

Mr. John H. Martin, proxy for Hon. Mark H. Bell, of the fourth district, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the action of the recent democratic executive committee at its recent meeting, and the more efficient organization of the democratic party for the next state convention, will be the chief consideration of such indomitable type that heretofore he has been inoffensive, went to the farm house of Mr. John H. Martin, of Whitfield, to assist him in grinding a knife. Mr. Rhodes was busy at the time and could not give his attention to the lunatic, when the lunatic, when the knife cut a deep gash in his neck, lay way down the back. Mr. Rhodes immediately turned upon his crazy assailant, when he saw the madman cutting him in the face and breast. The boy was in great pain from his many wounds, caused Mr. Rhodes to fall, but in doing so he called a boy to his assistance. The boy came up with a knife and cut off his hand, and the lunatic, turning his knife up, cut the boy's hand, when Mr. Rhodes called to the wounded boy to stop, and the lunatic, when he saw the knife and he discharged a heavy charge of powder and ball into the head of the crazy man, killing him almost instantly. Mr. Rhodes was literally torn, but as none of the wounds, fortunately, had been inflicted in a vital spot, it is thought he will eventually recover, while it is believed to be an impossibility for the boy to survive.

The Constitution.

Entered as second class matter at the Atlanta postoffice, December 11, 1859.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 31, 1860.

We print elsewhere a card from General Toombs in regard to the results already accomplished by the railroad commission. It is written in his usual vigorous style, and will attract attention.

The republican opponents of a third term in New York do not propose to remain passive spectators of the conspiracy against the confederacy of the republic; they propose to have without delay a central committee that is to be well supplied with the munitions of warfare. If Grant gets a third term in defiance of the unwritten law of the republic, they propose that he and his friends shall encounter the sturdiest and deadliest blows they know how to deliver.

AWAY off on the Rio Grande, in the wild country of Arizona, General Hatch with 700 men is trying to run down about 200 Apaches under the leadership of the wily Victoria. The country is mountainous and full of difficulties, and Victoria pays no regard to international boundaries. Sometimes he prefers Mexican territory, and sometimes that of the country. Just now he is in Arizona, with General Hatch in hot pursuit.

Two important facts are to be borne in mind in connection with the war-duties now collected from the people and the industries of the country. 1. When the custom-house tax is prohibitory, the whole amount of it goes into the pocket of the monopoly in whose interest it is levied. 2. When the necessities of the people compel them to import articles upon which a protective tariff is laid, they pay a double-tax—on the government in the shape of custom-house duties and another to the monopolies in the enhanced price to which protection lifts the imported articles in our market. If these taxes and double taxes are placed upon a war-basis, as they are now, when the surplus revenue in the treasury will amount to $84,000,000 annually, they become the very quintessence of injustice. It is robbery pure and simple; and as long as the democrats have a majority in congress and refuse the relief which the people demand, the people and the industrial interests of the country have a right to charge that the democratic party is in league with the monopolies.

The reforms asked for are just and reasonable that they might well commend themselves to all honest protectionists, but when a democratic party and means committee in effect declares that the representatives of the people shall not even vote upon the question the country is left to infer that democratic professors of reform are the shallow pretences. For our part, we are confident of the opinion that if these tariff reforms are not inaugurated at the present session of congress, the democratic party will be overwhelmingly defeated.

The modern novel bids to play no important part in the next campaign; for the republicans have selected "A Fool's Errand" as a campaign document, and it is now proposed that the democrats shall offset this movement of the enemy by the selection of "The Master of Red Leaf"—both to be issued by tens of thousands in pamphlet form. The last named story was written by Mrs. E. A. Marriwether, of Memphis. "In no other book," says the Memphis Appeal, "have we read so much that is photographically true of the south, so strong in its statements, so vividly real in its pictures, so masterly in its delineations of the scenes in which offense and defense found the reservoirs during the war. All the shades of high and low life in the south are pictured with a fidelity that will challenge the approval of every southern man and woman, and which cannot fail to find thousands of northern admirers, even among those who have no political sympathy with us. 'The Master of Red Leaf' is not only historic but defensive of the south."

The Georgia Democracy.

Elsewhere will be found a full report of the proceedings of the state executive committee held in this city yesterday. It is to be hoped that the harmony and enthusiasm which characterized the deliberations of the committee will extend to every section of the state. Each member of the committee seemed to be impressed not only with the necessity of securing the unity of the party itself, but of promoting harmony among all who are sincere in establishing the principles of the democratic party. The resolutions offered by Colonel John H. Martin, and adopted by the committee, are precisely in the direction of suggestions made in these columns, and are intended as an invitation to those who are honestly opposed to the mechanical methods which have prevailed in nominating conventions, but who, at the same time, earnestly desire democratic success. The suggestion of the committee that the state conventions be held upon the same day throughout the state is a good one. If this suggestion be adopted by the counties the democratic voters will have full notice of the meetings, and if they fail to participate they cannot, with any justice, complain that they have been taken advantage of by political managers.

There will be two state conventions held—the first on the 9th of June to elect delegates to Cincinnati, and the second on the 4th of August to nominate candidates for state officers and to choose presidential electors. No action was taken with respect to the two-thirds rule in the state convention, but in accordance with a request of the St. Louis convention the suggestion is made to county conventions that they make some expression of their opinion upon the subject. It is suggested that the county meetings to select delegates to the state convention be held on the first Tuesday in June, and that the meeting to select delegates to the court of Queen Elizabeth, as any of the old fashioned managers.

Some Plain Language.

Those editors who express astonishment at the heat displayed in the recent attempt of the democrats to get this question of tariff reform before the house simply confess their ignorance of the prevailing sentiment among the people. The temper manifested on both sides was significant. Upon one side was the honest indignation of men sincerely desirous of relieving the people and the industries of the country of at least a portion of the iniquitous war tariff imposed upon them in the interest of monopolies, and upon the other the desperation of the attorneys of the monopolies who had pledged themselves to prevent all such legislation; upon one side disgust at the non-action of a packed and subsidized committee, and upon the other fear that the issue of tariff reform would be brought to a direct vote in the house.

The monopolists are now making their desperate stand, and the congressmen who are in their pay are engaged in a last effort to defeat the will of the people; but as has often happened before, and as will often happen again in matters of this kind, the monopolists and their tools are overrunning the business. The spirit of the mercenary is too predominant to be concealed.

AN exchange says that Mary Asdorn was not kiss-artistically. That may be, but Honest Anna Abbott knows how to wipe off Romeo's romantic chin—and don't you see it is reasonable?

Mr. HAYES says it is easy enough to talk about civil service reform where there's company around, but he doesn't want the stuff hung in his face while he is struggling around his own fire-side. We have never been a fraudulent president, but this seems to be a reasonable view.

An exchange says: "The best plays have the most villainous in them." Then why doesn't some son of an oyster-can dramatize the republican party?

AN Iowa mother remarked the other day that if a two-year-old girl had been born an Ohio man she would now be engaged in supporting the family in some office or other. Women have very curious ideas about some things.

According to the arrival of the United States war ship Keenagh at the Ohio River, the New York Mail says "it needs business." Well, yes—for some stiff carpentering.

The country is perfectly willing to see your Uncle Richard Thompson, commandant of the anti-papal war-tube, haulled into a political dry dock for re-pairs. Your Uncle Dick isn't making noise enough to suit the warlike instincts of the people.

compelled to force these importations to pay a tax sufficient to aid in sustaining its credit during a most trying period—a period when every source of revenue was strained to its utmost to meet the demands of an emergency. Fifteen years after the war, when the people demand relief from what in time of peace is an iniquitous burden, they are met by the monopolists who say the tax-payers shall have no relief; and those who really represent the people in this matter find themselves confronted by a committee packed by Mr. Sam Randall, the speaker of the house, and by subsidized congressmen. Not only is this packed committee determined to give the people no relief, but they even refuse to make an adverse report upon bills referred to them, thus preventing the question from coming to a fair issue in the house. The whole matter is pigeon-holed by the packed committee in the interest of the monopolies. It is the system of strangulation, and as it is pecuniary importance to the various monopoly interests to have this system of strangulation, we close a letter of one of the opposition who writes a letter to him from his bed.
